COUNTS ONE THROUGH THREE

[18 U.S.C. §§ 1343 & 1346]

I. INTRODUCTION

At all times relevant to this Indictment:

1. The City of Dayton was a local political subdivision of the State of Ohio that receives annually millions of dollars in funding from the United States. More precisely, the City of Dayton received in excess of $10,000 in federal assistance from the United States between July 31, 2015 and July 30, 2016. It again received in excess of $10,000 in federal assistance from the United States between July 31, 2016 and July 30, 2017.

2. A commission comprised of five members (hereinafter "the City Commission") governed the City of Dayton with the assistance of a city manager who oversaw the day-to-day operations of this municipality. In turn, various subdivisions within the government of the City of Dayton reported to the city manager, including an entity known as the Human Relations Council or HRC (hereinafter "HRC").

3. Based on publicly available information:

a. The HRC, among other things: "provide[d] business and technical assistance to minority-owned, woman-owned and small disadvantaged businesses." As part of this process, the HRC "administer[ed] programs aimed at increasing the competitiveness of minority-owned, women-owned, and small disadvantaged businesses including [certain] certification programs." These HRC led or administered certification programs included: the Procurement Enhancement Program ("PEP"); the State of Ohio Disadvantaged Business Enterprise ("DBE"); the State of Ohio Minority Business Enterprise ("MBE"); and the State of Ohio Encouraging Diversity, Growth, and Equity ("EDGE"). Upon obtaining one or more of these certifications, a business or individual became eligible to bid on, or otherwise participate in, certain contracts with the City of Dayton and other government entities.

b. Given its role in administering these certification processes, the HRC and its employees also helped identify and select qualified bidders for a significant portion of contracts that the City of Dayton awarded to private individuals and businesses. For instance, the HRC and its employees assured that bidders satisfied certain requirements, including, not limited to, certification status - imposed upon many contracts with the City of Dayton. Additionally, once a bidder received a contract from the City of Dayton, HRC and its employees monitored the bidder's adherence with certain aspects of the agreement and could cause other subdivisions within the municipality to excuse or otherwise mitigate a bidder's non-compliance issues.

4. Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN, an employee of the City of Dayton, held various positions within the HRC, including, but not limited to, Director of the Minority Business Assistance Center ("MBAC"). Through his position as Director of MBAC, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN exerted control over the process by which businesses and individuals obtained certifications under the various programs described above. Given his role at the HRC, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN also had access to certain confidential, non-public information from the City of Dayton concerning, among other things, forthcoming demolition projects, anticipated requests for proposal, and other materials concerning planned development and construction projects within the city. Additionally, as Director of MBAC, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN had the ability to influence to whom the City of Dayton awarded contracts and to cause other subdivisions within the municipality to excuse instances in which a business or individual failed to comply with certain aspects of their agreements with the municipality.

II. THE SCHEME TO DEFRAUD AND ITS EXECUTION

5. Between a beginning date unknown, but at least by in or around September 2014, and continuing through in or around September 2017, in the Southern District of Ohio, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN devised and intended to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud and deprive the City of Dayton and its citizens of their right to the honest and faithful services of its public officials and employees through bribery and the concealment of material facts and information.

6. Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN devised this fraudulent scheme to operate, and the fraudulent scheme did operate, as follows:

a. Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN secretly used his official position as a public employee to solicit and accept bribes - namely, gifts, payments, and other things of value - from private individuals and companies seeking to do business with, or having other matter pending before, the City of Dayton. In exchange for soliciting, seeking, and accepting these bribes, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN agreed to take, actually took, and caused to be taken favorable official action from the City of Dayton on behalf of the individuals or companies that paid the bribe to defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN.

b. More precisely, through his position with the HRC, including his role as Director of MBAC, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN solicited and accepted cash payments totaling in excess of $20,000 for his own personal benefit. Without the knowledge or consent of his public employer, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN solicited and accepted this money from individuals and companies seeking to do business with, or having other matters pending before, the City of Dayton.

c. In exchange for these cash payments, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN agreed to take, actually took, and caused to be taken favorable official action from the City of Dayton on behalf of the individuals or companies that paid these cash bribes to defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN. These official actions included, but were not limited to:

(1) Without performing full and complete checks concerning the qualifications of an individual or entity to obtain status as an MBE, PEP or DBE, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN improperly provided these certifications to individuals or entities that paid him bribes;

(2) Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN improperly disclosed confidential, non-public information from the City of Dayton concerning, among other things, forthcoming demolition projects, anticipated requests for proposal, and other materials concerning planned development and construction projects within the city. In providing these internal, confidential materials to individuals or companies that paid him bribes, defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN intended to provide these individuals or companies with an unfair competitive advantage over other potential bidders on those government contracts or projects.

(3) Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN exerted influence and pressure on other employees of the City of Dayton to excuse, forgive or take less severe action in the event that an individual or business that had paid him a bribe failed to comply with the terms or a condition of contract with the City of Dayton.

d. Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN failed to disclose to the City of Dayton and its citizens his improper relationship with the individuals or companies making illegal personal cash payments to him. Defendant ROSHAWN WINBURN, in fact, engaged in steps to hide, conceal, and cover up his activities and the nature and scope of his dealings with the individuals or companies making illegal personal cash payments to him.
